

PRESS RELEASE: Flow 5.0 by Studio Roosegaarde at TodaysArt 2007

Flow 5.0 is a new interactive sculpture made out of hundreds of ventilators which reacts on your sound and motion. Commissioned by TodaysArt 2007 this sculpture intervenes with the existing architecture of the Cityhall in the Hague.

By walking and interacting illusive landscapes of transparencies and artificial winds are created. Moving through Flow 5.0 the visitor becomes conscious of himself as a body, in a dynamic relation with space and technology.

Artist Daan Roosegaarde describes: "The use of technology is a strong element of our identity. Flow 5.0 is a futuristic exploration in this embedment of technology with our body and daily environment."

You are more than welcome to come and interact with Flow 5.0 at TodaysArt, 21st & 22nd of September at Cityhall in the Hague, NL.

More info at www.studioroosegaarde.net and www.todaysart.nl. Press images are available at mail@studioroosegaarde.net

Studio Roosegaarde; met Daan Roosegaarde (creative director), Peter de Man (partner in software), Axis Stuifmeel (partner in technology), Marnix Rijnart (electronics) en Mark van Meerkerk & Johan Otten (production).